W. K. POSTON.
We have not observed, since our acquaintance with Memphis, such intense concern manifested for the fate of a citizen, as that called forth by the intelligence of the illness and death of W. K. Poston. If he had been a man of national reputation, a great statesman, soldier, or whatever else distinguished, the anxiety or grief of the people would not have been unexpected. But he was not great to the world, as the world did not know him. He was great in the estimation of all classes of this community, for they knew him. In all those elements that place one man above another, and above the masses, he was not surpassed by many whose names have been given to the disposition of fame and been perpetuated in history. If he had not the genius of many, he was without the faults, and a stranger to their frailties. He was greater than any man who had not believed over himself, over circumstances, and over death itself, a substantial victory. He was greater than any man who had not overthrown the turbulence of ambition and imposed silence on the pale whispering lips of fear. He was a hero, a moral one, and the sublimest of heroic characters. He never bathed a sword in the blood of a human being. He never led an army or mingled in the stormy fight; but he schooled his heart to Christian sentiments and taught his tongue to utter them. He lived, and in life, earned the applause of all good men. He dared to think right, to speak right, and to act right. He feared not man and did not regard death, as he had lived, he died, a philosopher and a Christian.

It is said by one who stood by the death and dying man to the last, that he had seen many men die, but never one who died like Poston. He met death with the courage and confidence with which he had been accustomed to meet any event in life which could neither be controlled nor evaded. He looked steadily in the face, grasped its skeleton hand, and passed out in its company. Thus lived, thus died the great lawyer, the honest statesman, the Christian hero, the devoted husband, the affectionate father, the true friend, the highest type of our race.

DEATH OF R. K. BECKTEL.
If death loves a shining mark, its love is not truer than its aim. At seven o'clock on Saturday evening, its arrow struck down that model of a Christian gentleman, W. K. Poston. Twenty-three hours afterwards it pierced the heart of R. K. Becktel, an honored citizen of Memphis. He breathed his last at six o'clock last evening. There is not, in the whole city, a man who possessed better principles, or one who enjoyed a greater share of the respect and confidence of the people. His disposition was kindly and genial, and drew about him the love and esteem of all who knew him. He long been a merchant here, and at the time of his death was an alderman of the city. Trusted for his fidelity to truth, honored for his services to society, loved for the goodness of his heart and the benevolence of his character, his death was a sorrowful event. At a time when crime is almost omnipotent over law, and vice over virtue, society can ill afford to lose such a man as Becktel was. He leaves a large family, and friends who will not forget him.

AND STILL ANOTHER.
And still another old citizen is gone, and the gloom grows more and more intense. Providence is sweeping from among us the oldest and best men of this city. Thomas McKee, one of our most respected merchants, died at four o'clock this morning. He was many years on the bluff, saw the progress of the city, lent his hand to its advancement, lived an honored life, and died like an honest man and a Christian. We learn that still others are dangerously ill.

THE LEGISLATURE.
BROWNLOW'S Legislature was not, on Friday, quite a Legislature. The Senate was faithful in assembling. The House was slow in obeying the gubernatorial command. A quorum had not assembled. WILLIAM G. sent into the Senate a message, a report whereof it is to be found elsewhere in this paper. It is WILLIAM G. all over, all round, all through, and all about. There is only one key to WILLIAM G.'s piano, only one catgut to his fiddle: that key is "rebel"—that catgut is "ditto." He is assured that upon the ratification of the Constitutional amendment, the Tennessee delegation will be admitted to seats in SCHRYER'S Senate and STEVENS' House. But WILLIAM G. is a little too anxious about this matter. He seems to have been fired with a new impulse, stimulated with a new decoration. It is suspected that a count of Representative and Senatorial noses has developed a radical majority in his delegation. If that be the fact, then so. If more than fact, then so, also. There is, however, an ugly—only for WILLIAM G.—report in circulation. It is reported that the House cannot command a quorum, and that a number of Senators—just enough to unquorum the Senate—will resign, and thus defeat the amendment. We don't know. We hope—almost against hope—that these reports may have a method of truth in them.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.
The war in Europe has begun in earnest, and the brave Italians have been the first to encounter disaster. It appears from the telegraphic report—and it may only be appearance—that the Austrians have the best discipline, and are an overmatch for VICTOR EMANUEL'S forces. What the relative strength of the two forces was, has not transpired, but it is probable the Italians were outnumbered. It is reasonable, however, to conclude that they would not have crossed the Mincio with an inferior army. Prussia seems to be playing a mysterious game of strategy, and the Austrians to be in some bewilderment. We are not quite familiar with the strategical points, but Austria is, and the next steamer will probably bring intelligence that Prussia has been checked. It is difficult to locate the Emperor NAPOLEON, but his eagle eye is looking down upon the vast chess board, and knows upon what point to swoop in his own good hour.

PRESIDENT'S POLICY.
The Cincinnati Gazette says:—The discussion of the President's policy is just now especially interesting, and its conspicuous presentation in the clear light of his record and that of the party with which he has been identified since 1861, is important, because we find the leading men and the Conventions of the Democratic party, persistently, and with less and less reservation, indorsing it. The Southern people are at it also. And this state of facts exists, notwithstanding the appointments made by the President are uniformly outside the Democratic party organization; while he holds Jefferson Davis a prisoner, and refuses to permit him to be bailed, and declines to pardon Raphael Semmes, or to permit him to fill an office to which he has been elected by the people of Mobile.

It is not to be questioned that the South would think better of the President if he did not detain Mr. Davis in a dungeon, and did not interfere in our local affairs. We certainly do not indorse the policy that detains Davis in prison.

HOW IT WAS CELEBRATED.
The celebrations of the fourth in the North were little else than jubiliations over the downfall of the South. The "rebs" got many oratorical digs in the ribs. But they can bear them and grow fat in the midst of all their misfortunes. If the old fourth is to be appropriated to party, then let party have it. We can get on with some other day. Days are alike. The sun is over the rebs as well as others, and the air is free for them to breathe. Any day may be appropriated and held as an anniversary. The fourth was the day upon which our independence was declared. It was fought for freedom. We loved it, because it reminded us of the triumph of liberty. If it shall serve in the future to remind us of subjugation, we can manage to celebrate it by going fast to sleep, and thus get over it and its political suggestions.

DEATH OF RHETT.
The Charleston Courier says that the RHETT assassinated a few days ago near Charleston, was not ex-Senator ROBERT BARNWELL RHETT, the former well known secession and nullification leader referred to in the Associated Press telegram, but his brother, BENJAMIN G. RHETT, a well known cotton factor of Charleston, who has always been engaged in planting and commercial pursuits, and who has never figured in any way in political life. He was shot dead while riding on horseback a short distance from the city, by an assassin who lurked in a bridge by the roadside. At last accounts no traces of the murderer had been discovered.

THE TRUE COLORS.
The Cincinnati Commercial, a paper half horse and half alligator, is laboring to disrupt the Philadelphia Convention, by arguing that it means the disruption of the Democratic party. It takes a purely party view of the matter, and is clearly opposed to the objects of the Convention. If the Democratic party, which is conservative, can be kept away, it is hoped that the project will fall to the ground. We trust that this result will not crown the struggles of the Commercial. That paper, we are glad to perceive, is showing its true colors.

AN ASYLUM WANTED.
If the Radicals are not attempting to prove that the negroes of the South are in a condition worse than that of slavery, what in the name of common sense are they attempting to prove? There never were such groans for the negro while in slavery as we hear now that he is free. The Radical heart only ached for the slave. It bled for the freedmen. An asylum for political lunatics, is perhaps, the greatest want of the day.

kingdom of BRIGHAM YOUNG. Thousands more are coming. As BRIGHAM stands in need of some young and fresh wives, he may be able to supply himself out of the emigrant lot.

SUICIDE.
The Hartford Courant states that a Mrs. WALKER of that place has recently inherited from English relatives a fortune of thirty-five millions of dollars. She will be the richest woman in America.

FROM NASHVILLE.
Meeting of the Legislature—No Quorum in House—The Constitutional Amendment—Brownlow on Political Justice—Metropolitan Bill Defeated.

NASHVILLE, July 6.—The Senate having a quorum present, the Governor sent in his message on the ratification of the Constitutional amendment, and invoking action upon it as consistent with the gravity and importance of the subject. He argues: "I beg you to bear in mind in your deliberations that while most of you have been at all times personally and individually loyal to the United States as a whole, you represent a State most of whose people went into the late rebellion, raised one hundred and fifty-four regiments and sent them into the field to fight against the National Government; levied war against us for four years, and were finally conquered and reduced to the condition of inhabitants of subjugated provinces, wholly at the mercy of the conquerors by the laws of nations and the laws of war. The General Government has undoubtedly the right to prescribe the terms of settlement to the State of Tennessee. These terms have been prescribed, and are now presented for your acceptance or rejection."

"I have every assurance that when they are accepted your Senators and Representatives will be admitted to their seats in Congress, and the State at once claim her lost rights. Are these terms reasonable? For my own part they seem but a decree of political justice and equity made necessary by the result of rebellion. It is now your proud privilege to restore the noble old commonwealth to her ancient position in the Union of our fathers. As you have performed your duty heretofore, in defiance of abuse and denunciations of traitors, so I am confident you will not fail to do so in future, heedless of threats or dictation from any source."

He closes by calling attention to the necessity of amending the Metropolitan Police act as a law. In its practical workings it is found to be quite defective. Chief among these defects may be mentioned want of adequate remedy in case of the refusal of the County Courts to lay and collect the necessary revenue to defray expenses of the police, and power of evil disposed persons in combination to arrest operations of the commissioners by injunctions and wanton litigations. Other defects will present themselves, and it is believed will be easily corrected. Through perfection of the law is recommended.

Mr. Carrigan, Conservative Senator, offered a resolution for the Legislature to adjourn and not come to a vote on the ratification of the constitutional amendment, for the reason that one-third of the State was not represented. Laid on the table by yeas 13, nays 6. Trimble's resolution to ratify was referred to the Judiciary Committee. The House is yet without a quorum.

Mississippi News.
From the Holly Springs Reporter of Friday, we clip the following items of news:

The committee of arrangement continue their work to ensure the complete success of the Grand Tournament on 18th and 19th. The members of the press are requested to say, are generally and especially invited to come. We are not in doubt whether their hats are to be "chalked through," but special accommodations will be provided for all who make themselves known." So, Sir Knights of the Quill and Scissors, come along. And if quarters cannot be had elsewhere on account of the crowd, the Reporter office is at your service. We can't furnish beds, but promise to make you comfortable with a large number of sheets which lie empty.

THE CROPS.—The crops in this county are suffering greatly for rain. The little which fell last week did great good. But it was confined to a small portion of the county, and was, besides, but a drop in the bucket of what is needed. The heavy and continuous rains in the early part of the season have, and the ground, so that only a soaking wet spell will be of any benefit. Even the cotton, which is usually benefited by warm, dry weather at this season of the year, is now suffering on account of the baked condition of the ground.

THE WHEAT CROP.—The wheat crop in Marshall has not turned out well. It is scant, and that of inferior quality. In some localities, however, very fine wheat has been made; but only to a limited extent. We regret this very much. For our county had been raised upon until having a bumper crop, and many of our people have been in absolute want. A short wheat crop, therefore, will very materially retard the recuperation of the county from its prostration and poverty.

IS IT TRUE?—It is rumored here that our State Senator, Hon. J. H. R. Taylor, has been appointed by Judge R. A. Hill, Commissioner under the Civil Rights bill for Marshall county. We have not heard this from any authoritative source, and do not believe it. We give it for what it is worth, with a view of soliciting the truth in the premises.

Tennessee News.
We find the following in the Bolivar Bulletin of Saturday:

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—Capt. THOS. R. POLK, a worthy citizen of the Folk family of Tennessee, and one among the best citizens of Morehouse parish, says the Monroe (La.) Telegraph, was thrown from his horse on the morning of the 25th instant, and died in a few hours from injuries received by the fall. Capt. Polk was possessed of rare social qualities and a heart rich in every good and manly attribute. He was universally beloved by his acquaintances, and his untimely death will be lamented by a large and bereaved circle of friends. He leaves an interesting family to mourn over his melancholy fate, and with whom we deeply sympathize in this afflictive dispensation of our Allwise Father.

DROWNED.—A most unfortunate occurrence transpired a few hundred yards above the ferry on last Wednesday evening. An old gentleman by the name of Morgan, a resident on a place of Wiley Fort, a few miles west of here, in company with his sons, some three or four in number, went into the Hatchie to bathe, the elder of whom, Eliza by name, and a citizen of Pontotoc, Miss., aged twenty-one years, ventured too far into the current and was drowned in full view of those he had loved and cherished from his infancy.

SUICIDE.
Suicide is becoming a frequent, if not a fashionable mode of disposing of the mortal coil. We are not inclined to think that it will become the rage, but it is probable that a class of persons in this country will, for many years to come, find life scarcely less bitter than thoughts of self-destruction. Remorse can make no impression on some men, but there are others who, in the midst of all their crimes, are not insensible to the poundings of conscience. There is, in a Northern paper, a case in point:

"It is not generally known to the public that Preston King was for a time an incubus at the White House, and was made the collector at New York harbor to get him out of the way. But few understand why he committed suicide; but there are those who have an idea why he committed the act. It was, no doubt, his conscience. It was Preston King who kept Miss Surritt from seeing the President on the morning of the execution of her mother. The President knew nothing of her being at the steps, in agonizing tears, to ask the stay of the law for one short day. Old King kept the President from knowing what was going on, and, after the execution, it becoming so apparent that the condemned was innocent of complicity with the real murderer, that it harrowed up his soul. In fact he had no peace after her death, and, becoming desperate, he committed suicide. Have the others who he haunted this poor woman on to the gallows, got consciences. We believe they have, and know they must suffer bitter stings."

General Muster of Prussian Soldiers—Appearance of the Men.
Breslau (June 17) Correspondence of the London Times)
The railways are swarming with troops. It is evident, too, from their appearance, that Prussia has made great exertions in order to place the army she has in the field on a war footing. Boyish recruits who seem hardly able to carry their knapsacks and arms, and grizzled Landwehr men, who have long left the ranks of the regular army, are equally enrolled in the detachments of soldiers either get into or out of the trains, and everywhere can be detected the busy stir and feverish bustle which forbodes the gathering together of an army for battle. Daylight this morning was ushered by a slow, drizzly rainfall, which made the roads muddy and slippery; but marching detachments have been splashing along them since the earliest dawn appeared, to gain the country railway stations, on the platforms of which, made greasy by the moisture, the soldiers wrapped in their cloaks, huddled together to get as much shelter as possible from the weather, until the time came for them to get into the train.

Some of the detachments appeared to be recent levies drawn from the neighboring country. Many of the men were accompanied on their march to the station by women, who wept silently as they moved almost mechanically alongside of the marching ranks, and who strained with eager eyes after the train till it turned in the line or distance hid them from our view. The soldiers themselves looked grave, but very determined. The news which came from Frankfurt last night has roused the war spirit in the land.

Horrible Tragedy in Indiana.
From the Lafayette Journal, July 3.
We are informed of some of the particulars of a most horrible and cold-blooded murder and suicide which occurred on Sunday, a short distance from Reynolds, in White county, twenty-three miles north of this city, on the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago Railroad. It appears that a man named Brummer and his wife, from some domestic trouble, had separated, both, however, remaining in the same neighborhood. On Sunday, about 11 o'clock, Brummer met his wife about half a mile from the town, accompanied by her little boy, when he drew his revolver and shot her two balls taking effect in her body. The fiend then threatened to shoot the boy if he did not clear out, and the little fellow started for town. Brummer, thinking he had killed his wife, shot himself and died, it is supposed, instantly, falling across the body of the woman. The woman's clothes caught fire, and were burned completely off, so that when assistance reached them, half an hour afterwards, she was perfectly naked, and the flesh in many places burned to the bone. The poor woman lived until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, suffering intense agony. This horrible tragedy has thrown a feeling of sadness and gloom over the entire community in which it occurred, seldom equaled. We shall endeavor to obtain full particulars of the affair as early as possible.

Garibaldi and the Volunteers.
Milan Correspondence London Herald)
In my letter from Como I gave you an account of the arrival and reception of Garibaldi, and of my first impression of the volunteers; having now seen them at drill in small bodies, and in regiments under the eye of Garibaldi himself, I am enabled to even more than confirm my former favorable report of them. They are simply, without exception, the finest material for soldiers I ever saw. The great majority are between the ages of nineteen and twenty-five, but there are a good many older men, and, perhaps, a fifth or sixth of the whole number are men from sixteen to nineteen. More than half, I should say, belong to the middle and upper classes; perhaps one-quarter are artisans or mechanics, and the remainder belong to the lower order. They are, as a whole, tall, and are all exceedingly active, well-made fellows, capable of going anywhere, and doing anything that men could be asked to do. All are in high spirits at the arrival of Garibaldi, and only burn to be brought into the presence of the enemy. It must not be supposed that the volunteers are by any means all raw recruits, for I should say that quite half of those at Como have having served as volunteers in the Italian army in the last war against Austria, in his Neapolitan campaign, or in the regular army.

Foreign.
Foreign correspondence shows that the monarchs and people were evidently astonished at the rapid and successful movements of the French armies in Hanover and Saxony. The report of the occupation of Dresden and Leipzig produced considerable astonishment among the citizens of Vienna, but nothing like consternation. The utmost secrecy was maintained relative to the Austrian plan of campaign. It was alleged in Paris that the Parisians favor the Prussians and the policy of Bismarck.

We are informed from Berlin that the Emperor of France is in hearty accord with Bismarck and King Frederick William. It appears as if Napoleon was simply confused. The Italian volunteers on the right bank of the Po were in sight of the Croatian sentinels doing duty for Austria on the other side. The Duke de Chartres, Louis Philippe's grandson, tendered his services as an officer to Victor Emanuel, but the offer was declined by the Italian cabinet.

Financial Disruption.
The Cincinnati Enquirer predicts financial troubles. It says: "It is not common to find a man of average intelligence who will not freely admit that, in his opinion, there are close at hand, in the United States, great economic disruptions and disturbances, the whole field at a single view, and calculate the effects of the reaction and reaction of the different elements—financial, industrial, political and social—upon each other, and their combined result, there is a widely-prevailing sense of insecurity; an instinctive dread that there is an abyss near at hand into which all must sink, and from which extraction will not take place without great intermediate changes and calamities."

BY TELEGRAPH.
THE NOON DISPATCHES
From Galveston.

MEDICAL.
HELMHOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU
FOR WEAKNESS ARISING FROM IN-
FLAMMATION. The exhausted powers of Nature which are accompanied by many alarming symptoms, among which will be found Indigestion, Nervousness, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil in fact, universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyment of society.
The constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which Helmholt's Extract Buchu invariably does. If not remedied, it is liable to terminate in Consumption or Insanity ensues.

HELMHOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU.
In affection peculiar to "Females," it is unequalled by any other preparation, as it cures or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Menstruation, Leucorrhoea, or Scirrhus of the Uterus, and all complaints connected with the sex, whether arising from habits of dissipation, imprudence in, or the decline or change in life.

HELMHOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU.
Will radically exterminate from the system disease arising from habits of dissipation, and restore the system to its normal state, without the inconvenience or exposure of completely supererogating these unpleasant and dangerous remedies, and without the necessity of resorting to the use of the lancet, or the use of any other surgical or medicinal agent.

USE HELMHOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU
In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in the form of Chronic or Acute Inflammation, and no matter how long standing, it is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate in action," and produces more benefit than any of the preparations of bark or iron.
Those suffering from broken down or delicate constitutions, should be aware that Helmholt's Extract Buchu is the only remedy that can be taken with safety, and that it is certain to effect a healthy blood, mental power, and happiness.

HELMHOLD'S Extract Buchu IS THE GREAT DIURETIC.
HELMHOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENTRATED Compound Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic and acute diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scirrhus, Leucorrhoea, Ulceration of the Throat and Legs, Hiccups, Pimples on the Face, Tetters, Erysipelas, and all eruptions of the skin, and in beautifying the complexion.

HELMHOLD'S Compound Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla.
Not a few of the worst disorders that afflict mankind arise from the corruption that accumulates in the blood. Of all the discoveries that have been made to purify it, none can equal in effect Helmholt's Compound Extract Sarsaparilla. It cleanses and renovates the blood, invigorates the vitality of the system, and purges out the humors which make disease. It stimulates the healthy functions of the body, and expels the disorders that grow and rankle in the blood. Such a remedy that could be relied on, has long been sought for, and now, for the first time, the public have one on which they can depend. Our space here does not admit of certificates to show its effects, but the trial of a single bottle will show the sick that it has virtues surpassing everything they have ever taken. Two table-spoons of the Extract of Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is fully equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoction as usually made.

HELMHOLD'S Compound Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla.
These Extracts have been admitted to use in the United States army, and are also in very general use in all the State hospitals and public general institutions throughout the land, as well as in private practices, and are considered as invaluable remedies.
